

X International Scientific Conference

"Faces of Prosperity"

Pomeranian Science and Technology Park

On behalf of Rector of the Powiślański University, Prof. Dr. Krystyna Strzała, and the Organizing Committee, we cordially invite you to participate in the 10th International Scientific Conference "Faces of prosperity", which will be held at the Pomeranian Science and Technology Park in Gdynia on May 19, 2023.

We would like the title concept of prosperity to become a reference point for deliberations and discussions of a wide range of researchers from different scientific fields. It should be emphasized that in the last few decades the scope of meaning of this concept has expanded significantly, going far beyond the currents of utilitarianism. The category of well-being should be considered not only in the context of wealth creation and equitable criteria for its distribution, but also in relation to the overall quality of life and more broadly well-being understood as the general well-being of the individual with the clearly emphasized importance of psychological factors.
